

Ethics in Business :
Ethics or Ethical Law, which comes first ?

Mr. Amarjeet Singh Bhatia

Q:1 Are Our systems geared to take on the challenge thrown open by the changing socio economic scenario ?

- Our systems are going through a very difficult fragile transition. Greatest crises to have befallen our country are the sharp and continuous decline in moral and ethical values. Every second person holding important post has become corrupt and debauch. We need to find an entry point for civil society it is only feasible by accepting the challenge through open by the changing socio economic scenario that confronts us alone we can do so little alone we can do so much together a complete overhaul of the Indian legal service is in the offing.

Q:2 Are our laws simple and transparent enough to conduct business in an ethical manner ?

- Making laws only without providing minimum infrastructure will not solve present law and order problems. The ambit of laws should be widen, our laws is not that simple and transparent enough to conduct business in an ethical manner? ATR (Action Taken Report) should be prepared by concerned officer's rhetoric speeches in parliament are no solution. Laws should be implemented in right perspective.

Q:3 Is our implementation and monitoring mechanism robust enough to find and throw the rotten apple ?

- Assessment of true picture of the existing law and order faced by nation is must to throw out the rotten apple. Supporters of unethical ways defend of pragmatism. The future of India is its rich cultural ethical heritage that is also the future of the world. It is the first step in making of the world citizen.

Q: 4 Why do we need media trial to get justice for Jessica Lal or Ruchika – are our laws not robust enough? Are we too tolerant ?

- Our laws should get more teeth and should be followed up to their logical end. It is imperative to implement speedy justice as expeditiously as possible for smooth functioning and justice of rule of law and democracy in our country so that there is no Jessica Lal or Ruchika like trial. It is not what you look that matters it is what you see, instead of being tolerant we should see situation, object or persons plight for speedy justice.

Q:5 Have we not yet understood the linkages between Corruption and Terrorism ?

- Terrorism and corruption is of national concern hence linkage between them is of prime concern. We have not understood the linkage in real sense. The evil of it has now become the problem of day to day life which has destroyed the peace of the every second country. It should have mission oriented management structure and encourage participation by the people. Terrorists, insurgents and criminals respect no boundaries hence linkage between corruptions which leads to terrorism for ones selfish end cannot be ruled out.

Q:6 Are we now ready to say “No to Corruption” and “yes to Ethics” and build India of the new decade where peace, harmony and tranquility would reign ?

- We the countrymen are the real CUSTODIANS of democracy freedom which has been gained by the sacrifice of many of Indians brave sons and daughters are ready to say NO to corruption and yes to ethics. The list of noble soul of India is endless instead of changing standard of living. Changing standard of life is more important, moral values, characters and virtue should be present to reign peace, harmony and tranquility.
